THE REPUBLICAN

J. C. SMITH, Editor and Publisher.
W. F. PETER, Business Manager.

Published at the Seymour, Indiana, Post Office as Second-Class Matter.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1904.

DEMOCRATS must not be despondent and cast down for the fact that the Republican party puts forth shines for all. Be hopeful brethren.

DOWN at Madison a young man committed suicide, leaving a note stating that his extreme bashfulness prompted him to take his life. He was an exception. Few deaths can be traced to that source.

DOWN in Knox county the democratic county auditor has resigned when he had three years to serve yet. This is certainly unusual and the retiring auditor realizes that fact and says he will make public an explanation.

GOVERNOR-ELECT HANLY's plurality is about $3,000. And just to think that John Kern was made to believe he could win even if Roosevelt did carry the state. The Taggart crowd made as poor a show at prophesying as they did at the polls.

The official count gives Roosevelt a plurality of 92,871 in Indiana. It seems incredible that any one should have insisted on putting Indiana in the doubtful list. Again we suggest that Tom Taggart is a political wonder. Will he ever have the courage to pose as a leader again?

The republican members of the legislature of the first district have a caucus and declared for James A. Hemiway, of that district for United States senator to succeed Senator Fairbanks. Mr. Hemiway has been a candidate for some time and has announced that he will open headquarters at Indianapolis soon.

ONE thing can be set down as true and that is that the people of this country will never consent that any man or any party can hope for success who threatens to pull down the American flag. One other thing is that the Republican party has everywhere and under all circumstances stood for "Old Glory" and all that it implies. Remember this.

Now that the election is over and everybody understands what the principles of this government will be for the next four years, let us forget party strife and animosity, if there be any, and every one strive to succeed in business and all that makes for the prosperity and happiness of our people and the welfare of our state and nation.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is Pleasant to Take.

The finest quality of granulated loaf sugar is used in the manufacture of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it quite pleasant to take. Mr. W. L. Roderick, of Poolsville, Md., in speaking of this remedy, says: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with my children for several years and can truthfully say it is the best preparation of the kind I know of. The children like to take it and it has no injurious after effect. For sale by C. W. Milbous.

OLD MOTHER EARTH.

HARDLY ANY TWO SCIENTISTS AGREE AS TO ITS AGE.

Some Speculation About the Tiny Atom in the Boundless Universe Upon Which We Dwell—Theories About the Interior of Our Globe.

Hardly any two scientists agree as to the age of the earth—that is, as to the length of time which has elapsed since the earth's crust became solid. Considering the very slow rate at which rocks are deposited by water and the immense thickness of the beds of these "stratified" rocks, as they are called, it seems that at least 1,000,000,000 years have passed since the globe evolved in its present shape out of the whirling mass of incandescent matter which it must once have been.

But Lord Kelvin, arguing from the known rate of loss of heat, declared that not more than 100,000,000 years is the limit of time which has passed since firm rocks appeared and life began upon the earth. More recently Professor Tait declared that a tenth of Lord Kelvin's estimate might be nearer the truth. All geologists, however, declare that the latter estimate is too low.

We know with the utmost exactitude how heavy our little world is. If you put down the figure 6 and follow it by twenty-one noughts, you have it within a very few million tons. Roughly speaking, this implies that the earth is five and one-half times as heavy as a globe of water of the same size.

But, in spite of this accurate knowledge of the earth's weight, we have no real idea of what is the condition of things inside our planet. Thousands of experiments made in all parts of the world show that the temperature rises on an average about a degree for every sixty feet below the surface. If this rate of increase continues regularly toward the center, that part of the globe must be at a heat so appalling that imagination is unable to grasp it. When this fact of increase of temperature with depth first became ascertained geologists got the idea that we were living upon a furious furnace, of which volcanoes were the escape pipes.

Now we know better than that. We have found, among other things, that an earthquake in Japan is able to register itself in England. This actually happened in the case of the disaster in north Japan some years ago, when 20,000 people lost their lives. A tremor of this kind could not pass unless the earth had a rigidity approaching that of steel, and observations of tides and the attractions exercised upon us by sun and moon have made it pretty certain that our world is just about as hard and solid as so much steel.

This does away with the liquid interior theory and makes it fairly certain that the earth is solid all through, with perhaps occasional accumulations of fluid rock here and there in parts where for some reason or other the pressure is not so great as it is in others.

It also upsets the old theory of volcanoes, and the modern idea with regard to these mountains of death and destruction is that water from the surface finds its way through a few miles below the surface, and then, being suddenly turned into steam, causes an explosion, or series of explosions, like boiler burstings on a gigantic scale.

Every schoolboy knows that the shape of the earth is an oblate spheroid—that is to say, that it is flattened a little like an orange at the two poles. The polar diameter of the earth is actually twenty-seven miles less than its diameter at the equator. But it is as yet not absolutely ascertained whether the flattening is similar at both poles. Some arctic explorers appear to be of the opinion that the flattening is greater at the north than at the south pole.

Another rather startling fact is that the equator is not a perfect circle. If you could drop a plumb line from Ireland through to New Zealand it would be somewhat longer than another which cut the earth at right angles to it. The difference has not yet been ascertained with absolute accuracy.

We are accustomed to talk of sea level as an invariable quantity. It is positively startling to find how very far from level the sea is; not, of course, merely from the passing influence of tides and winds, but there are great and permanent elevations in the sea—positive mountains, in fact. It is calculated that in the bay of Bengal the water lies at a level exceeding that of the Indian ocean by fully 300 feet and that of the Pacific ocean along the coast of South America may be heaped up as much as 2,000 feet higher than the water in the opposite Atlantic. These water mountains depend upon the attraction of great mountain masses, the bay of Bengal upon the Himalayas and the south Pacific upon the American Andes.

The height of our highest mountains has been measured to within an inch or two, and we have accurate information on the subject of the great depths of the sea, but we do not yet know with any certainty how deep is the atmospheric envelope of the earth. At one time twenty-seven miles was given as the limit. This was increased to forty, and soon even this estimate was extended to 100.

Our only means of measurement is by the meteors, which spring into an incandescent blaze through friction when they strike our atmosphere. As man cannot live at a much greater height than five miles, it may be that we shall never learn exactly how thick is the atmospheric ocean at the bottom of which we crawl. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Monkeying With the Truth

Telling It on the Installment Plan Is Safe—For a Very Short Time

From "Old Gorgon Graham; More Letters From a Self-Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer. By permission of Doubleday, Page & Co., Publishers.

Your first report looks so good that I'm a little afraid of it. Figures don't lie, I know, but that's only because they can't talk. As a matter of fact, they're just as truthful as the man who's behind them.

It's been my experience that there are two kinds of figures—educated and uneducated ones—and that the first are a good deal like the people who have had the advantage of a college education on the inside and the disadvantage of a society finish on the outside—they're apt to tell you only the smooth and the pleasant things. Of course it's mighty nice to be told that the shade of your shirt front is blinding the floor manager's best girl, but if there's a hole in the seat of your pants you ought to know that, too, because sooner or later you've got to turn your back to the audience.

Now, don't go off half cocked and think I'm allowing that you ain't truthful, because I think you are reasonably so, and I'm sure that everything you say in your report is true. But is there anything you don't say in it?

A good many men are truthful on the installment plan—that is, they tell their boss all the good things in sight about their end of the business and then dribble out the bad ones like a fellow who's giving you a list of his debts. They'll yell for a week that the business of their department has increased 10 per cent and then own up in a whisper that their selling cost has increased 20. In the end that always creates a worse impression than if both sides of the story had been told at once or the bad had been told first. It's like buying a barrel of apples that's been deaconed—after you've found that the deeper you go the meaner and wormier the fruit, you forget all about the layer of big, rosy, wax finished pippins which was on top.

I never worry about the side of a proposition that I can see. What I want to get a look at is the side that's out of sight. The bugs always snuggle down on the underside of the stone.

The best year we ever had, in our minds, was one when the superintendent of the packing house wanted an increase in his salary, and, to make a big showing, swelled up his inventory like a poisoned pup. It took us three months to wake up to what had happened and a year to get over feeling as if there was sand in our eyes when we compared the second showing with the first. An optimist is as bad as a drunkard when he comes to figure up results in business; he sees double. I employ optimists to get results and pessimists to figure them up.

After I've charged off in my inventory for wear and tear and depreciation I deduct a little more just for luck—bad luck. That's the only sort of luck a merchant can afford to make a part of his calculations.

The fellow who said you can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear wasn't on to the packing business. You can make the purse, and you can fill it, too, from the same critter. What you can't do is to load up a report with moonshine or an inventory with wind and get anything more substantial than a moonlight sail toward bankruptcy. The kittens of a wildcat are wildcats, and there's no use counting on their being Angoras.

How Some Husbands Wind Up.

There are a lot of women in this world who think that there's only one side to the married relation, and that's their side. When one of them marries she starts right out to train her husband into kind old Carlo, who'll go downtown for her every morning and come home every night, fetching a snug little basketful of money in his mouth and wagging his tail as he lays it at her feet. Then it's a pat on the head and "Nice doggie!" And he's taught to stand around evenings, retrieving her gloves and handkerchiefs and snapping up with a pleased licking of his chops any little word that she may throw to him. But you let him start in to have a little fun scratching and stretching himself or pawing her, and it's "Charge, Carlo!" and "Bad doggie!"

Of course no man ever believes when he marries that he's going to wind up as kind Carlo, who droops his head so that the children can pull his ears and who sticks up his paw so as to make it easier for his wife to pull his leg. But it's simpler than you think. From "Old Gorgon Graham; More Letters From a Self-Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer.

Getting a Line on Men.

You can tell a whole lot about your men from the way in which they come in and the way in which they go home, but because a fellow is in the office early it doesn't always mean that he's panting to begin work. It may mean that he's been out all night. And when you see a fellow poring over his books after the others have quit it doesn't always follow that he's so wrapped up in his work that he can't tear himself away from it. It may mean that during business hours he had his head full of horse racing instead of figures and that he's staying to chase up the 30 cents which he's out in his balance. You want to find out which.

The extra poor men and the extra good men always stick their heads up above the dead level of good enough men—the first to holler for help and the second to get an extra reach. And when your attention is attracted to one of these men follow him up and find out just what sort of soil and fertilizer he needs to grow fastest. It isn't enough to pick likely stock; you've got to plant it where the conditions are right to develop its particular possibilities. From "Old Gorgon Graham; More Letters From a Self-Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer.

UNCLE SAM'S REINDEER.

Raising These Animals an Important Industry in Alaska.

Uncle Sam has found a very economical and successful way of sustaining life among the Alaskan Eskimos, says the Scientific American. About a dollar and a quarter a year per caput pays the bills, the "value received" consisting of reindeer, imported from Siberia, which furnish the natives with food, clothing, means of transportation and other necessities of life.

Dr. Sheldon Jackson, the Alaskan agent of the bureau of education, discovered as far back as 1890 that these people were rapidly losing the sources of their food supply. The whales were going farther and farther northward, the walrus were disappearing, and the seals were becoming exterminated, and even the caribou had departed.

The result was that in the following year (1901) Dr. Jackson brought over from Siberia the first lot of reindeer, only sixteen, and started a little colony of them on Unalaska, an island lying off the bleak coast of Alaska.

At first the experiment was looked on as rather a waste of time and money, but time came to the rescue, and it was clearly proved that these animals could be successfully imported and taken care of, so that now our good lawmakers are appropriating $25,000 annually for increasing the supply. The reindeer have taken kindly to the native moose, which forms their principal article of food and of course needs no outfit for cultivation. There is said to be enough of this moose in Alaska to furnish plenty of food for 10,000,000 reindeer.

At the present rate of increase, even if no more are imported, there will be at least 1,000,000 reindeer in Alaska in less than twenty-five years. To go a step further, it will not be at all surprising, in the opinion of some, if this industry should grow to be one of considerable commercial importance to the United States, and it has even been estimated that in some thirty-five years Alaska may be in a position to sell annually half a million to a million reindeer carcasses, besides furnishing several thousand tons of hams and tongues.

The reliability and endurance of these animals are remarkable, making them invaluable for transportation service. This is proved by the fact that they have now for several years been used to carry the United States mails on regular routes with the greatest success and in about half the time required for dog teams. They can also be ridden with a saddle and travel along contentedly with a pack load of 150 pounds.

Thus, while the original motive in bringing these reindeer into Alaska was simply to give the natives a permanent food supply, their excellent adaptation to transportation purposes, especially in view of the discovery of large gold deposits on the streams of those distant arctic and subarctic regions, has caused them to become an actual necessity for the white man as well as for the Eskimo.

BRAIN FOG AND EYE STRAIN.

Assignment One of the Chief Causes of Mental Fatigue.

It is well known that mental activity is accompanied by increased determination of blood to the brain, with the inevitable accompaniment of increased metabolism of the exquisitely fragile cerebral tissues. This produces the result of functional impurity of the circulation, the ill effects of which increase at compound interest in connection with the overstrained organs of thought. The feeling of "general" fatigue then comes to be gradually established. Surely every reader has felt it who has made such efforts and recognized the similarity of feeling of being "completely done up" which follows excess of either class of exertion.

But a special factor in the production of mental fatigue, and which is completely ignored in these discussions, is that of eye strain. The unhappy owner of astigmatic eyes—one or both, symmetric or asymmetric, in greater or lesser degree of abnormal development—is in the position of having his most delicate nerve centers as much strained and his cerebral circulation as much distorted by half an hour's continuous exertion of attention and memory, accompanied by reading, as will those of his healthy neighbor be by the work of a whole day.

A Well's Wonderful Cure.

A wonderful cure has just been effected by the waters of St. Winifrede's well, in the little Welsh town of Holywell, the fame of which dates back hundreds of years. The patient is James Plunkett, a builder's laborer of Manchester, who became almost a helpless cripple after falling from some scaffolding. He was dipped in the well and given a course of baths and was soon able to discard his crutches. He now walks with the aid of a stick, having only just the suspicion of a limp.

Pension Commissioner's Resignation Is in Effect

Washington, Nov. 15.—Eugene S. Ware, pension commissioner, last evening tendered his resignation to the president, the same to be effective upon the appointment of a successor. Commissioner Ware refused to discuss his action in any way except to state that the newspapers of the country had been "resigning" him for the past

PENSION COMMISSIONER EUGENE S. WARE two years. For at least one year, however, it has been officially known that Mr. Ware would retire from his office soon after the fall elections and return to his home in Kansas to resume his law practice. It is believed here that Commissioner Ware's action was not due to any suggestion that the severance of his relations with the pension office would be agreeable to the president. On the contrary it has been no secret that Commissioner Ware soon after assuming his duties found the duties of his office distasteful to him and that this distaste steadily increased. There is no intimation as to who his successor will be.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

New Way of Using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. Arthur Chapman writing from Durban, Natal, South Africa, says: "As a proof that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a cure suitable for old and young, I pen you the following: A neighbor of mine had a child just over two months old. It had a very bad cough and the parents did not know what to give it. I suggested that if they would get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and put some upon the dummy that the baby was sucking it would no doubt cure the child. This they did and brought about a quick relief and cured the baby." This remedy is for sale by C. W. Milhous.

Only Makes a Bad Matter Worse.

Perhaps you have never thought of it but the fact must be apparent to every one that constipation is caused by a lack of water in the system, and the use of drastic cathartics like the old fashioned pills only makes a bad matter worse. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are much more mild and gentle in their effect, and when the proper dose is taken their action is so natural that one can hardly realize it is the effect of medicine. Try a 25 cent bottle of them. For sale by C. W. Milhous.

PROBLEM SOLVED

Attorney General Settles the Question That Has Puzzled Many Minds.

WHEN DO TERMS BEGIN?

Certain County Officers Elected a Week Ago Did Not Know When to Take Hold.

Confusion as to Term of Office Created by Too Much Legislation on Subject.

Indianapolis, Nov. 15.—Numerous inquiries have been received at the office of the secretary of state regarding the time of service of the following officers elected at the last general election: County auditor, county treasurer, clerk of the circuit court, sheriff, recorder, prosecuting attorney, assessor, coroner, surveyor, county commissioners and judges of the circuit courts. By reason of the various acts passed by the legislatures of 1897, 1901 and 1903, confusion has arisen as to the date of the beginning of the terms of service of these officers. In an opinion from the attorney general, who reviewed the confusion caused by the change in term of the county clerk to "clerk of the circuit court," and the confusion caused by question of constitutionality of the act of 1903 which fixed the time of beginning of terms of office, Attorney General Miller states that each of the officers mentioned in the acts of 1897 and 1901, elected on Jan. 1, except the clerk of the circuit court. Since the judges of the circuit and superior courts are not mentioned in either of these acts, these officers will assume office at the expiration of the terms of the present incumbents.

ENDED IN MURDER

Rivalry for Young Woman's Hand Leads to Tragedy at Lewisville.

Paragon, Ind., Nov. 15.—Jealousy between Edward Thomas, twenty years old, and Charles Bowman, twenty-five, of Gosport, has culminated in murder. Thomas called to see Miss Stella White, a girl of seventeen, whose parents live near Lewisville, this county, to whom he was paying attentions, with the intention of pressing his suit, but the young woman rejected him. Thomas then went to Lewisville, where he met Charles Bowman, whom he regarded as his successful rival. The men had a short talk in James Dannagan's store, and spectators thought it was a friendly one. Thomas then asked Bowman to step outside, where the conversation was renewed. Suddenly Thomas drew his revolver and began shooting, two bullets striking Bowman in the breast, near his heart, causing almost instant death. Thomas gave himself up and was removed to Spencer for safekeeping. Later the prisoner was claimed by the sheriff of Morgan county, the murder occurring on the Morgan side of the line, and he was transferred to Martinsville.

Warning Against "Tonsillitis."

Indianapolis, Nov. 15.—The state board of health is getting ready for a vigorous tussle with the dread disease diphtheria. Circulars warning people to be careful of mild cases of "tonsillitis" are being sent out. Recent reports to the board show that diphtheria in malignant form prevails in several counties. Several deaths have occurred from the disease which the doctors first diagnosed as tonsillitis. The people believed this to be the malady until deaths began to occur.
